Buying Rush Seen In Some Cities As New Tax Deadline Nears To Bring Increase In Prices

NEW YORK, Oct. 25—A buying rush is on in many sections of the country in a campaign to "beat the tax" before additional federal excise levies are imposed under new regulations taking effect Nov. 1.

The upsurge, started by consumer realization there will be price hikes on such items as liquor, automobiles, cigarettes, gasoline and many household goods, is nationwide but at the same time "spotty."

The effects of the forthcoming tax increase on sales of many articles was determined in a cross-country survey.

While numerous dealers reported purchases advancing as much as 35 to 100 per cent above normal, several said they did not expect any real buying wave until a few days before the Nov. 1 deadline.

The rush in some cities—as compared to near apathy in others—was attributed in part to heavier advertising concerning the tax measure and the resulting price increases.

The liquor market was among the first to feel the increased demands. Wholesale buying by retailers from the large distributors preceded and still appears to be far ahead of purchases by consumers. But the consumer now is rushing to the counter to stock up.

There was a marked increased demand in some areas for lower-priced automobiles but little, if any, change in the demand for higher-priced cars. There appears little prospect of any wild buying of motor vehicles in the upsurge because of previous limitations restricting stocks.

Many distributors of cars long have had more demand than supply. Distributors, for example, who normally would be able to move 70 high-priced cars a month now are able to obtain only about 20 from the factory.

Cigarettes, while on the upward march in purchases, as yet have not attained anything like a boom in sales.

Motorists are not lining up immediately to fill gas tanks, but observers point out the several days remaining before Nov. 1.

The east seems slowest of all to join in any frenzy of buying. The Chicago area is ahead of the Mountain States region, and the Far West appears to be going in heaviest on the purchasing end.

In New York, a spot check of local retailers of liquor showed only a slight jump was evident in over-the-counter sales to personal consumers.

The principal rise was noted in case purchases by firms which normally distribute bottles of liquor during the holiday season.

The wholesale distributors in the New York area, however, are doing a boom business. One firm which distributes throughout the nation said its increase in sales was "tremendous," and estimated that the tax measure had brought a 50 per cent rise above normal in sales.

Retail buying was expected to mount steadily, however, with increasing newspaper advertising campaigns throughout the metropolitan area which began Wednesday.

Many of the advertisements only hinted at the tax rise while others mentioned it directly.

Dealers in the Washington, D. C., area reported no rush to beat excise increases. They believed it possible many consumers do not realize that the boosts actually take effect Nov. 1. These dealers recalled that previous price increases always were preceded by a buying boom and expect the rush to start a few days before Nov. 1.

A spot check around Chicago showed a marked increase in whisky sales. This was so especially among the big firms whose spokesmen termed the buying "just like Christmas."

The Chicago region noted no big increase in auto sales. Stepped-up cigarette and gasoline sales are expected before Nov. 1.

Around Dallas, there appears little immediate reaction to the forthcoming tax rise. Whisky sales are continuing about the same, although some increase in stocking by retailers is noted. Car dealers said some persons who had planned to buy within the year came in earlier to beat the tax. There was no change in gasoline and cigarette sales.

Los Angeles reported whisky and cigarette buying up considerably at both wholesale and retail levels, with bigger last-minute rushes anticipated.

The San Francisco area dealers report a heavy drive on liquor. Extensive newspaper advertising doubled and almost tripled sales in some cases. New car sales showed a slight increase above normal, but a greater increase is anticipated.

GIs Await Atom Tests

Dropping Of Bomb Above Troops Seen

LAS VEGAS, Oct. 25—The matting of the atom and the GI, a melding that could change the history of land warfare, was one step closer to realization today after military and scientific evaluation teams studied yesterday's dry-run rehearsal which substituted TNT for the baby A-bomb.

The test, participated in by the special weapons command of the Air Force — indicating that the troop-bomb may be dropped on a hypothetical enemy line about to be stormed by atomic troops — meant that the conductors of the current tests have two hitherto unknown facts under their belts:

1. They can create atomic detonations of considerable but rigidly controlled force, adaptable to the swirling mobility of land warfare.

2. At least 1,000 troops, operating under the command of Maj. Gen. William Kean, now have a good idea of what to expect on the day of the big test and what to do about it.

Nobody at AEC wanted to talk about the next step to be taken as darkness fell over the battlefield last night. High winds spread an enormous blanket of dust over the desert plains and there was some question as to whether there could be a test—atomic or TNT—today.

AEC SPOKESMEN were particularly mum about the possible use of a plane or planes in connection with the impending atomic troop tests.

"That would constitute commenting on the conduct of the experiment, which is strictly forbidden," said Ned Trappnell, AEC press chief.

It seems likely, however, that in view of the fact atom shells are not yet in existence an effort will be made to simulate such an atomic weapon's explosion over "enemy" troop concentrations and installations by dropping one from a plane after fixing its proximity fuse so that it will detonate about 100 feet above the ground.

Nine Special School Levies Due At Polls

Pickaway County voters will be asked to decide upon nine special school operating expense levies at the November elections.

Six of the nine requests are for renewals of levies already in existence, while the other three are asked by the school districts in order to meet increasing expenses.

Circleville city school district is seeking renewal of a two-mill levy for five years during this election for current operating expenses.

Ashville school district is requesting approval for renewal of a three-mill levy for five years for operation.

Circleville Township voters will be asked to approve a new three-mill levy for three years, a levy asked to meet rising costs.

DEERCREEK Township school district also is seeking a new levy, a two-mill request for three years.

Jackson Township district is seeking a new two-mill levy for five years for operation.

Monroe Township voters will be asked to vote on a renewal of a three mill levy for a period of five years for current operation.

Atlanta school district is seeking a three-mill levy renewal for a period of three years.

Pickaway Township school district seeks renewal of a three mill levy for a period of five years.

And Wayne Township voters will be asked to approve a three-mill renewal for a period of three years.

THE LETTERS "UN" shine brightly from windows of the United Nations building in New York, marking United Nations Week and the organization's sixth birthday.

2½-Mile Armistice Belt Urged To Divide Korea

MUNSAN, Oct. 25 — The United Nations proposed at renewed treaty talks today that an armistice belt two and a half miles wide be drawn across Korea, with the UN yielding 200 square miles in the east and the Reds 200 square miles in the west.

The proposal, which would set up a military demarcation and buffer zone roughly along the battlefield lying mostly inside Communist North Korea, was made at a subcommittee meeting in Panmunjom.

It came shortly after the momentous armistice conference was resumed by the full five-man UN and Communist delegations which then turned over to the four-man joint subcommittee the knotty question of where to locate the truce line.

Maj. Gen. Henri I. Hodges, one of the two UN members of the sub-delegation, termed the Allied proposal "a new and concrete solution" of the buffer zone problem.

War Is Bitter In Korea While Truce Is Talked

KOREA, Oct. 25—United Nations and Communist land and air forces fought bitterly in Korea today despite reopening of armistice talks.

The Eighth Army's evening communiqué reported a tank-infantry raid southwest of Kumsong and a minor gain against heavy resistance southeast of that onetime Communist stronghold as the war entered its 17th month.

Elsewhere along the 20-mile front ground action was none the less fierce for being on a comparatively small scale and officially classified "patrol contact."

Despite the fifth straight day of big-scale attempted Communist interception with Russian-type jets, Allied fighter-bombers battered the North Korean rail system with its worst single day's loss of rolling stock since the war began.

A force of 50 Mig-15s had one plane damaged in a swooping aerial battle with 31 American Sabre-jets, bringing the three-day toll of enemy losses to 23 planes destroyed or damaged.

Allied warplanes in their greatest rail strike destroyed nine locomotives and 99 railroad cars north of Pyongyang. They damaged 19 engines and 129 cars.

Acheson Slated For Paris Trip

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25 — Secretary of State Acheson and his staff sail from New York late today for the Paris meeting of the United Nations General Assembly which begins Nov. 6.

Acheson is due to sail aboard the SS America despite the current dock strike that has tied up practically the entire New York port.

Spokesmen both for the striking longshoremen and the U.S. Lines said the liner will depart on schedule.

Churchill Odds Drop On Poll Eve

Total Vote Seen Near 30 Million

LONDON, Oct. 25—British voters turned out in huge numbers today in a fateful general election that will decide whether John Bull will return to Conservative rule under Winston Churchill.

Clear skies and a last-minute upsurge of public interest in the vital domestic and international issues at stake contributed to the vast outpouring.

The British electorate, making known its judgment on more than six years of Labor Party rule, obviously was impressed by the final speeches of leading candidates emphasizing that every vote will count. The odds on Churchill's favored Conservative Party slackened off from six to one to 9 to 2. The odds against a Labor victory stood at 3 to one.

There were indications the total vote might approximate 30 million, which would be 85 per cent of the eligible ballots.

MANY OF THE election clerks estimated the number as the largest before-noon turnout in history and some populous London areas reported a 20 to 30 per cent increase over the number of voters in the same hours in the 1950 general election.

Cars, ambulances, donkey carts and even a camel were pressed into service as both major parties tried to get out every vote.

Prime Minister Clement Attlee, an early voter himself, toured his Walthamstow constituency urging everyone to vote and Churchill's Woodford constituency was 1.2 per cent ahead of the 1950 poll in the first three hours.

The Conservatives, meanwhile, issued a statement protesting what they called a last-minute Labor Party attempt to sway the result by renewing swarming charges in a series of "smear" pamphlets.

The widely distributed pamphlets variously said:

"A cross for the Tories means a cross in the graveyard."

"Will your boy die in Persia?"

"The Tory policy would menace peace."

Conservative Party Leader Lord Woolton commented that "it is in keeping with the last desperate efforts of the Socialists."

But there were reports of a last-minute surge in Laborite strength, reducing the betting odds.

WHILE MOST Conservative newspapers expressed confidence that the last-minute swing would not be sufficient to keep the Attlee government in power, the influential Yorkshire Post said:

"The Conservatives remain confident but with a lurking suspicion that even now, at this late stage, the cup may be dashed from their lips."

Attlee was non-committal on the possible outcome. He said:

"I never prophesied, but I urge everyone to go to the polls."

His main rival, Churchill, remained in bed late, recuperating.

Ex-Con Sought As Peddler Of Poison Liquor

ATLANTA, Oct. 25 — Police searched today for an ex-convict named by other suspects as the producer and distributor of a wood alcohol compound which has killed at least 32 persons in Atlanta.

Authorities said they are seeking John R. "Fat" Hardy, 51, as the bootlegger wanted on manslaughter charges.

Detective Glenn Cowan reported that two of eight persons placed under $2,500 bond on charges connected with retailing the poisoned liquor named Hardy as the man who brought the original 65 gallons of moonshine into Atlanta.

The deadly moonshine brew apparently still is being sold in Atlanta. The latest victim died last night a few hours after he was served a drink.

Most of the bootleg whisky was sold Sunday when liquor stores were closed. The victims then began turning up at Grady hospital throughout the day and night.

More than 200 persons have been treated at crowded hospitals, many of them described by doctors as "plainly hysterical."

Egypt Eyes Soviet Pact

Trade Agreement May Be In Offing

CAIRO, Oct. 25—A foreign ministry spokesman said today that Egypt already has taken the first step toward concluding a trade agreement with Soviet Russia.

Talks on the Soviet-Egyptian trade pact — possibly forerunner of a friendship and mutual aid agreement advocated by ardent anti-British nationalists—are expected to begin shortly in Moscow.

The spokesman said a draft agreement already has been sent to the Egyptian minister in Moscow for submission to the Kremlin.

It is understood that Russia is seeking a "most-favored-nation" clause in the agreement, guaranteeing that no other country will receive more favorable trade terms than the Soviet Union.

Russia also is understood to be bidding for priority in purchases of Egyptian cotton.

EGYPT ALSO is seeking commercial agreements with Romania, Hungary and Czechoslovakia. The Red satellites are offering oil, grains, arms, ammunition, timber, newsprint, machinery and medicine in return for cotton, rice, manganese and other products.

The announcement came as British Ambassador Sir Ralph Stevenson conferred with U.S. Ambassador Jefferson Caffery at the American embassy.

An embassy spokesman, however, disclaimed knowledge of reports that the U. S. is making a serious bid to mediate the Anglo-Egyptian dispute. Caffery held conferences last night with King Farouk and Egyptian Foreign Minister Mohammed Salah El-Dine Bey.

2 Drunk Drivers Plead Guilty, Get Different Terms

Two drunken driving cases were heard before two local courts Wednesday, and the results were two widely different sentences.

Each defendant pleaded guilty to the accusation; one received only a fine while the other lost his driving license for one year and was given a fine and a suspended jail term.

In a hearing before Mayor Thurman I. Miller a fine of $100 and costs was levied against John Minor after he waived a jury trial and entered a plea of guilty.

This was the second hearing on the Minor case in mayor's court. In the first the defendant was bound over to the grand jury. An affidavit signed by Prosecutor Guy Cline bypassed grand jury action and took the case into common pleas court.

Common Pleas Judge William D. Radcliff, however, sent the case back to the mayor after it was learned that Miller had not made a finding that it would be "in the interest of the public good" for the defendant to be bound over to the grand jury.

In the second drunk driving case, heard before Judge Radcliff Wednesday, Eugene Edward Davis, 24, 369 Weldon avenue, was fined $10 and costs, given a suspended sentence of 30 days in jail and had his driver's license suspended for one year after he entered a plea of guilty.

He was given a preliminary hearing before the mayor in which he pleaded innocent. He was bound over to the grand jury on $500 bond, taken before Judge Radcliff on an affidavit signed by Cline.

Woman, 107, Shuns Looking Like 'An Old Lady'

DANBURY, Conn., Oct. 25—Mrs. Sarah Rockwell celebrated her 107th birthday today with a cake, a few guests and more than a few comments about the ways of the world since she was born in Virginia in 1844.

The birthday celebration was quiet only because Mrs. Rockwell had a big party last Sunday so that her whole family could be present. Sunday's guests included two daughters, four grandchildren, four great grandchildren and three great-great grandchildren.

Mrs. Rockwell refused to wear a shawl for the photographers. She explained that she did not want to look "like an old lady."

To newsmen she gave her formula for a long life: "I was never cross and crabby, always kept a good disposition, and never ate a much for breakfast."

Mrs. Rockwell appears to have taken most of the changes which have occurred in her stride. However she does not think much of the way children are raised these days. She said:

"They're not brought up the way I was. Why, I was brought up to be respectful. My mother was respectful too. She always called my father 'Mr. Pearce.'"

Dock Strikers Refuse Efforts By Mediators

NEW YORK, Oct. 25—Striking longshoremen rejected today a government proposal to end their wildcat walkout and their leader said the work stoppage will spread to Baltimore and Philadelphia.

A second meeting among strike leaders, the head of the official faction of the AFL-International Longshoremen's Association and government mediators was to be held this afternoon.

The dissident members of the ILA told federal mediators they would not end their ten-day-old strike until their new contract is renegotiated.

The agreement, ratified by a majority of ILA members, does not provide what the insurgents consider a sufficient wage increase and enough other benefits.

As the walkout entered its 11th day, the Commerce and Industry Association of New York estimated that $250 million worth of merchandise already has been stalled in movement through the port of New York. The organization said the total will mount an average $25 million daily.

NO LONGER fantastic is the idea that man can float through the air with the greatest of ease. For, sponsored by the Office of Naval Research in Los Angeles, is the new rocket-powered flying machine. An artist's conception of the one-man helicopter is shown above. Attached to the body by a harness, it consists of a two-blade rotor, powered by a midjet rocket motor. The device, weighing 100 pounds, can reportedly lift a man and carry him at a speed of from fifty to seventy miles an hour.

Navy, Marines Critized For Reserve Recalls

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25 — Senate probes criticized the Navy and Marine Corps today for "unnecessary" recall of World War II veterans and for dollar waste which would make a "prudent businessman shudder."

The Senate preparedness subcommittee cited as an example of needless recall of reservists the case of a staff sergeant who was put to fulltime duty handing out equipment at the golf course of the El Toro, Calif., Marine station.

The committee, headed by Sen. Johnson, (D) Tex., said: "It would be impossible to convince this man he was really needed and that there was sufficient cause to recall him to active duty."

The report said many similar examples could be cited and added:

"A great number of these men were torn from their families, homes and jobs unnecessarily. Veterans of World War II were called to perform duties which inexperienced younger men could readily handle."

Senators also denounced a regulation at Camp Lejeune restricting the right of the men to communicate with members of Congress. A bulletin board notice said they must not write a member of Congress about a grievance until after airing the matter with, "in order named, platoon leader, company, battalion and regimental commander."

The report said in no uncertain terms that servicemen should be free to write members of Congress without reprisals.

Stalin 'Welcome' To UN Meeting

PARIS, Oct. 25—United Nations Secretary-General Trygve Lie said today that he would be "happy to welcome" Premier Stalin to Paris, but he indicated he is not expecting a visit.

A New York newspaper report said that Stalin might put in a personal appearance at the UN meeting opening Nov. 6. He said:

"I should be extremely happy to welcome Stalin to Paris on behalf of the United Nations. He would automatically be chief of his country's delegation."

Child Problems and Solutions

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, PhD

It seems that all young infants get fingers or thumb into their mouths very early. While this can be a forerunner of thumb sucking at ages 2 or 3, it need not be. Excessive chewing or sucking of any part of the hand or sucking of the tongue can be lessened or prevented by sufficient food, enough normal sucking experience, and a tender, calm and loving atmosphere in the home.

Some breastfed babies begin undesirable sucking because the mother does not have sufficient food. This needs to be supplemented with a bottle prescribed by the pediatrician.

Many pediatricians recommend that the tiny infant who is inclined to suck fingers, thumb or tongue, be allowed to suck at the breast a bit longer than usual. They also suggest that such an infant have a bottle nipple with a hole small enough to require harder and longer sucking. Essential, too, is tender, affectionate handling of the baby. The gentle, quiet voice and serenity of the mother, as well as relaxation by all members of the family in an atmosphere ruled by love and companionship, will help the child. When older children help in the infant's care, they can cultivate tenderness toward the little person and further his feeling of well-being and security. It's wonderful when an older child, over 5 or 6 years old, is allowed to hold the baby for short periods—with sufficient guidance to insure safety, of course.

NOT ONLY is this good for the tiny infant but it is also good for the older child who thus expresses his affection—a good preventive and reducer of jealousy.

Here is what one mother writes: "Dear Dr. Myers: My girl, 2 years old, sucks her tongue. She has sucked her tongue since infancy. Whenever she gets hungry she sucks her tongue. I had very little breast milk and she cried a good deal and would suck her tongue for comfort to satisfy her hunger. We finally put her on a bottle.

"What can I do to help her? I have tried to keep my voice low and I don't play the radio too often. Of course, there are times when I do get upset."

In part, I replied: Not strange that your daughter's tongue-sucking started.

Even though the original cause has been removed the habit has continued. No doubt new causes that you are unaware of have helped keep the habit alive. Anxious and worried over the matter, you probably have often told her, and in angry tones, "Not to do it." Even when you guarded your speech, you betrayed your feelings on your face, by your breathing and other movements.

If you find her sucking her tongue during the day, say nothing about it. Instead, pick her up tenderly, cuddle and rock her and sing or read to her. Often do things with her. Talk with her. Answer her questions. Help her to enjoy using her tongue properly. The more happily she cooperates with you and other children or amuses herself, the less she will seek comfort from sucking her tongue.

It is fine that you seek serenity in yourself and protect your daughter from radio excitement. I trust Dad does likewise and that you and he enjoy companionship and mutual regard and affection, so that your child can feel all is calm and well.

Bright Injury To Be Aired In Conference

DES MOINES, Oct. 25 — Drake university's football team prepared today for its homecoming game against Iowa State, still not sure whether halfback Johnny Bright will be available.

Doctors are undecided whether the nation's leading ground gainer will be able to play against Drake's traditional rival because of the broken jaw he claims was deliberately inflicted by Oklahoma A and M last Saturday.

Bright was released from a hospital bed yesterday and watched his teammates scrimmage on the practice field. His jaws were wired together tightly.

At Drake's request, a special meeting of the Missouri Valley Conference has been called for Sunday morning in Kansas City to consider the Bright affair.

Drake's athletic council filed a formal protest with the conference, charging the Negro star's jaw was broken as a result of a "vicious, intentional attack" by Aggie lineman Wilbanks Smith.

A and M Coach J. B. Whitworth has apologized to Drake officials but denied any intention to injure Bright. Whitworth said he was "ashamed" that Smith used his forearm on Bright, adding:

"He has been a fine football player for me for two years and has never done anything like this before."

Influence Probe Is Extended To Barkley's Aide

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25 — The prospect of public hearings on the RFC loan activities of Vice-President Barkley's secretary increased today, sparked by a Republican demand and Barkley's offer of co-operation.

The demand for a "full, thorough, public investigation" came from Sen. Nixon, (R) Calif., a member of the Hoey investigating committee.

The committee is now conducting a closed-door inquiry into charges involving Mrs. Flo Bratten and Charles E. Shaver, who resigned as counsel for the Senate Small Business Committee.

Nixon told newsmen: "In view of the irreconcilable conflict between the charges and the denials the only way to get at the facts is to have a public hearing."

The Californian added that the inquiry should not be limited to the two loans in which Mrs. Bratten and Shaver have admitted taking an interest, "but should definitely go into all of their activities on behalf of individuals seeking loans."

Mrs. Bratten has admitted that she and Shaver went to the RFC regarding a $1.1 million loan for a proposed Miami Beach luxury hotel and a smaller amount for Mercury Records Co.

She said that she merely checked on the "status" of the loan applications. But Former RFC Director Harvey Gunderson has asserted that she and Shaver urged him to get approval of the hotel loan.

Ousted Revenue Collector 'May' Have Asked Aid

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25—Resigned Brooklyn Tax Collector Joseph P. Marcelle admitted today he may have asked George Schoenemann, then internal revenue commissioner, to block a probe of his activities last February.

Marcelle, who resigned Tuesday by request, explained to a House committee investigating tax scandals, that he was concerned because he was being considered for nomination as a New York supreme court justice.

He testified he asked Schoenemann at a Jackson Day dinner in February what he knew about the Internal Revenue Bureau investigation which was launched the preceding December.

Marcelle added that the commissioner said he knew nothing about it.

Chief Counsel Adrian Dewind then asked Marcelle: "Do you know if you asked him if he could get the investigation postponed?"

Marcelle replied: "I might have. I don't recall."

Schoenemann resigned in July because of ill health and was succeeded by John B. Dunlap, the present commissioner. Dunlap, who asked Marcelle to resign "for the good of the service," was in the hearing room today.

Marcelle testified both Dunlap and Treasury Secretary Snyder advised him his resignation was requested because of "my personal activity outside the office."

Wing Laborite who split last Spring with Attlee's rightwing group.

Two brickbats were tossed through a window of the fiery Welsh bevan's London home. Bevan immediately accused the Conservatives of inciting such violence by nicknaming him the "Tito of Tonyland."

There were not so many Churchillian phrases such as marked last year's battle when the Conservative leader sneered at the Socialists' "queuetopia," and sang what he called a Laborite version of "Home Sweet Home" that went: "Accommodation unit, sweet accommodation unit, there's no place like our accommodation unit."

Churchill has been campaigning in luxury by train compared to the frugal and shy Attlee. The Socialist leader, as he did last year, got in his tiny car with his wife at the wheel and toured England.

Attlee never wears fantastic hats or uniforms like Churchill. He makes few speech gestures, but he impresses crowds by his modesty and earnestness.

Churchill knows how to attract attention with his "V" for victory sign and his big cigars. Attlee, when he does smoke, does so quietly with a pipe.

Churchill Odds Drop On Poll Eve

from a gruelling campaign and planning to vote at 3 p. m.

The confident Conservatives concerned themselves not so much with whether they would win but with whether they would gain a large enough majority to form a stable government.

A landslide is more than the Tories hope for in view of the late gains which the public opinion polls showed for the Laborites in the dying stages of the campaign.

When the electioneering began three weeks ago, the Conservatives contemplated a majority of 70 to 80. But they now are thinking more in terms of a 30-to-50 seat edge in a House of Commons numbering 625 members.

PARLIAMENTARY opinion would regard anything below a 20-seat margin as a virtual stalemate. The voting will continue until 9 p. m. (4 p. m. EST) and will take in all but five of the 625 constituencies in Britain and Northern Ireland.

In all, 1,372 candidates are contesting 620 seats. Four seats in Northern Ireland already have been won by unopposed Ulster unionists who are affiliated with the Conservatives.

A fifth-seat, in Barnsley, will be settled in a by-election caused by the death of the Labor Party candidate during the campaign.

Approximately 319 results should be known by dawn Friday and from those results, a trend should be discernible.

Since most of the 319 boroughs traditionally go Labor, that party will need a lead of at least 30 seats after the first returns if they are to win.

The ballot-counting will be resumed Friday morning and by early Friday afternoon, the voice of the people will have been heard.

Woody's Woes Grow And Grow

COLUMBUS, Oct. 25—Coach Woody Hayes is still troubled today with a siege of acute fumbleitis and misfiring aerials along with a touch of melancholia on the part of Ohio State's Buckeyes.

Hayes has been trying lighter drills all week in preparation for an Iowa team, which is bent on avenging the 83-21 defeat of last year when the two Big Ten squads meet in Columbus Saturday afternoon.

Hayes said after yesterday's rehearsal "I can't figure it out." He figured light workouts and a drastic backfield shift would perk up his Bucks and added "evidently that isn't the answer."

Quackgrass Is Defeated By Brome

Test Results Are Outlined

TOPEKA, Kan., Oct. 25—Quackgrass, the tough and costly weed pest that plagues many farmers, has met its master. Crop specialists have found that brome will strangle quack and prevent its spread.

The man who intends to farm infested land must battle quackgrass, for it crowds small grain, gobbles up moisture and plant food needed by clover, corn, potatoes or other field crops. Until recent years following was the only known method of control.

Gilbert N. Brooks of Wisconsin has never seen an instance in which quack made headway against brome. He suggests two possible reasons:

1. Brome has a root system that is superior.
2. It is leafier than quack, it starts early, and produces a shading effect.

Arthur R. Wolcott of Michigan observed that brome is the best quack fighter adapted to the area. In tests conducted from 1948 to 1950, the best mixture for quack control was a seeding of one pound of ladino and four pounds of brome.

LAST YEAR, after Wolcott found that the content of the mixture determined amount of quack in the hay crop, he put two five-acre fields to a mixture of 1/2 pound of ladino, six pounds alfalfa, three brome, one each of alsike and timothy. In some parts of the field little quack shows. This mixture probably is superior to alfalfa-brome because the timothy makes a faster start than brome. The latter thickens the second year to fight quack.

Brooks dug out a square foot of brome sod and a like amount of quack sod. The former was firmly bound together with a dense mass of fine, strong roots. Soil couldn't be shaken out of it.

Coursing through the quack sod were a few tough rootstocks, from which growing plants had emerged. The soil was shaken easily from this sod. Volume of root material was small compared to that of brome.

Fellow Doctors Turn Thumbs Down On Medic

MANCHESTER, N. H., Oct. 25—Dr. Herman N. Sander, 42, acquitted a year and a half ago of the alleged "mercy killing" of a cancer patient, withheld comment today on refusal of the Hillsborough County Medical Association to readmit him as a member.

A majority of the members who attended a meeting of the society in Nashua voted to readmit Dr. Sander, but the 58 to 48 vote lacked the necessary two-thirds of those present.

Failure of the association to readmit Dr. Sander, a resident of Candia who practices in Manchester, means he must confine his practice to office and home calls. Until he is readmitted he may not practice in New Hampshire hospitals.

Dr. Sander was acquitted in March, 1950, of a charge of murdering Mrs. Abbie Borroto, 59, after a trial that attracted world-wide attention. The state had charged he took her life by injecting air into her veins.

Money was first coined in the United States in 1652.

Newspaper Ad Use Climbing

NEW YORK, Oct. 25—Media records reported today that newspaper advertising in 52 key cities during the first nine months of 1951 totaled 1,805,665,469 lines. This was a gain of two and three-tenths per cent over the same period last year.

Classified advertising led all other categories with a rise of 15 and 4-10ths per cent over the 1950 level.

Financial advertising gained six and four-tenths per cent, and department stores rose one and nine-tenths per cent.

Costello Back In Gotham; Visit Trip Is Denied

NEW YORK, Oct. 25—Underworld czar Frank Costello returned to New York from Hot Springs, Ark., yesterday, two weeks ahead of the Nov. 8 limit authorized by a federal judge.

Costello's lawyer, George Wolf, said his client decided to come home because he was refused permission to visit friends and relatives in New Orleans.

Costello was named by the Senate Crime Investigating Committee as one of America's top underworld leaders.

He is under federal jurisdiction because of an indictment charging him with nine counts of contempt before the Senate probes for refusing to answer questions.

Costello is scheduled to go on trial Nov. 13 along with Joe Adonis and Frank Erickson who were cited on the same charges.

The proposed trip to New Orleans was turned down on the grounds that Costello has been allowed to go to Hot Springs only because he complained of illness and his Louisiana relatives could visit him in New York if they wished.

Findlay Firm May Be OK Again

CLEVELAND, Oct. 25—The Kay Brand Packing Co. of Findlay will have its permit to ship meat into Cleveland reinstated Monday.

E. B. Buchanan, deputy city health commissioner, said the company has put itself under full inspection and has agreed to make certain alterations within 30 days.

The Akron health department yesterday also banned shipments to that city by canceling the firm's permit. Charles McDonald, head of the dairy and food division, said he ordered cancellation of the permit because tests showed the firm was mixing horse meat in its products.

Editors' Roundtable

"Editors' Roundtable" is a twice-a-week release based on a study of an average of about 150 daily newspaper editorial pages. The major issue of the day is analyzed and digested, passed on to readers as a survey of opinion from the nation's leading editors. It is the "voice of the press."

TAFT AND EISENHOWER

A minority of editors doubts that General Eisenhower could now overcome Senator Taft's lead for the Republican nomination for President. Taft's reported strength being the promises, though not yet formal pledges, of some 400 delegates, approximately 200 less than he needs for the nomination. But a somewhat larger minority believes that Taft will not receive a promised or pledged majority of delegates as long as there is a chance Eisenhower will accept the nomination. For a plurality of editors only future events, including the timing of Eisenhower's decision will determine the Republican Party's choice of a nominee.

CHARLOTTE (N. C.) Observer (Ind.-Dem.): "Senator Taft's formal announcement that he is a candidate for the Republican nomination for President... may have the effect of eliminating General Eisenhower... Widespread reports indicate how thoroughly the country is covered by the Taft organization. They show also a good understanding by the Senator that nominations are not handed to candidates on silver platters... Whether the general enters the contest or not, Taft now has such a long lead that Eisenhower probably cannot overcome it... Taft, therefore will probably be the nominee."

CHICAGO Sun - Times (Ind.): "Many delegates who like Eisenhower will be tempted to swing away from him the longer he delays in clearing up the question whether he will become a candidate... Yet the Taft strategy could backfire disastrously for him. An announcement by Eisenhower sometime in January would not be too late... Dewey in 1948 held out his announcement until Jan. 16. By officially announcing now, Taft takes a chance on uncommitted delegates ganging up against him. He invites open attack by members of his own party who aren't particularly for Eisenhower but are against Taft himself."

LOUISVILLE Courier - Journal (Ind.-Dem.): "It is now pretty clear that no man except General Eisenhower has a real chance to stop Taft at the Republican convention in 1952. Even Ike will be lost, however, unless he announces before the snow flies and turns his friends loose to round up delegates. An announcement next Spring would be too late. Taft already has many delegations tucked away in his pocket, including those from Kentucky and Indiana."

PENSACOLA Journal (Ind.-Dem.): "If present indications that General Eisenhower will allow his name to be presented to the convention pan out, Mr. Taft is doomed to disappointment again, for the popular military leader would be a pushover for the nomination and also for the election. The only way Taft could win the nomination would be for him to tie up enough state delegates prior to Eisenhower's entry. However, as many Republican leaders realize the situation, it is likely they will try to elect unpledged delegations so they will be free to switch to Eisenhower."

er if the opportunity presents itself."

TAMPA Tribune (Ind. - Dem.): "Polls show the general is far more popular with the American people than the Senator—but the people don't nominate Presidents; the party workers do. It is no secret that many Republican regulars are distrustful of Eisenhower because he has worked closely with a Democratic administration and they don't know where he stands on such important matters as patronage for deserving supporters... Like, as a candidate, at this point appears unbeatable... But the march of events is strengthening the chances of Candidate Taft."

KANSAS CITY Star (Ind.): "In considering the two men the Republican party will have certain personal factors to take into account. Senator Taft is favored by many party workers because they regard him not only as an able man, but as the embodiment of Republican doctrine—as 'Mr. Republican'... Undoubtedly Taft could get the party vote—all of it. But more than that is needed. The millions of independent voters determine the outcome of elections. As of today there seems a strong preponderance of opinion that Eisenhower rather than Taft could command these voters' support. Therein lies the choice."

NEW BEDFORD (Mass.) Times (Ind.): "Taft's opponents, while conceding his ability, say he is not a vote-getter. That is an idea sedulously cultivated by the party in power, but it is refuted by the fact that when a powerful coalition of national labor leaders made an all-out effort to defeat him in the Ohio senatorial contest last year, he was elected by a majority of 430,879 which included many members of labor unions... The Republican Party, now that Mr. Taft has declared his candidacy, has an opportunity to terminate the 20-year period during which it has gone down to defeat in five presidential elections."

Looking Ahead

By George Benson
President
Hardin College

The Indianapolis public school system is doing something that ought to be copied by the schools of every town and city in the nation.

This year every senior in the city's high schools is being taught the advantages of the American private enterprise economic system and how the system actually works in the businesses, industries and homes of Indianapolis.

Next year, and thereafter, every school child in Indianapolis, from the 4th through the 12th grade, will be included in this brand new program designed to create a better understanding of and appreciation for the American way of life.

This encouraging development in Indianapolis has been prompted by a careful study of what high school graduates don't know and the educational deficiency of the city's school system. The study was made by the school people themselves, and the new program being developed to fill an extremely important educational void has the active support of all groups in the city—industry, organized labor, business, the professions, utilities, banks, etc.

THE INDIANAPOLIS study which was carried on during the 1950-51 school year brought to light the fact that boys and girls graduating from high school didn't know the basic facts about the American system. Dr. Herman L. Shibley, superintendent of Indianapolis schools, said at the conclusion of the study:

"Our high school seniors have only a hazy idea of the way the American economic system actually functions in our own city."

He told the Indianapolis Board of School Commissioners that the schools could and should do something about this situation. The commissioners agreed.

Dr. Byron Williams, recently professor of education at the University of Rochester, was employed to head up an entirely new educational program.

In order to catch the seniors graduating next June and get across to them the basic facts about our American system, an improvised program was designed. Meanwhile, Dr. Williams will be developing the permanent educational materials which, beginning next year, will be used in all classes from the 4th grade up. He is getting much of his materials from big and little businesses and industries in the Indianapolis area.

Pointing to a recent national survey of high school seniors showing that 61 per cent of them believe the profit incentive could be eliminated without destroying our economic system, Dr. Shibley commented: "They failed to realize that the urge to make profits has been one of the great inspirational forces in building our nation."

"WHEN AN Indianapolis youngster watches his father leave for work each morning in a business establishment," he continued, "the boy probably doesn't realize that the business, created because of a desire to make profits, is enabling his father to bring home food and clothing for the family and to save money that will enable the boy to have a college education. Our new program should give the boy a better appreciation of what the private enterprise system provides for his family."

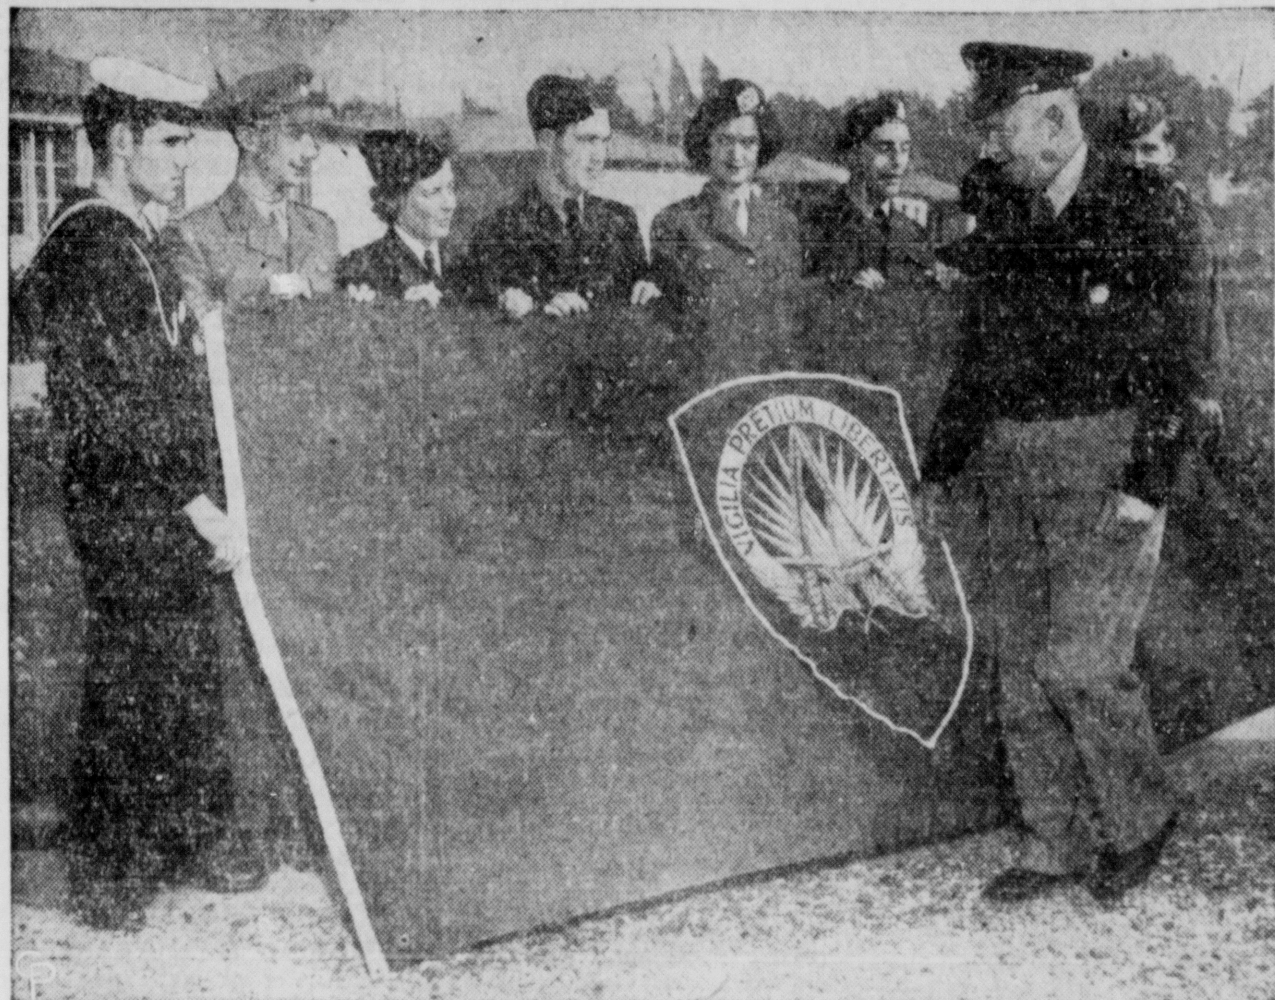

This is getting around, at long last, to one of the most important responsibilities of our educational system, and in the right way. Every poll I've seen in recent years has shown the same educational deficiency that Dr. Shibley found in Indianapolis. The Brookings Institution just concluded a nationwide survey and reported this conclusion:

"Only a very small percentage of our high school students get any real grasp of the economic factors and forces that are responsible for high standards of living."

The program being built by Indianapolis people to improve this situation is patterned after the Youngstown area (five-county) plan which was discussed in three of my columns last February and which formed the basis of my address, last spring, to the Atlantic City convention of the American Association of School Administrators. The Youngstown school program is far advanced.

SPECIAL TEXTBOOKS have already been written and are in use. A similar development of materials is under way in Indianapolis. We need to get such work started in every school in our land—NOW!

Here's an Americanism project in which you, the reader of this column, can take the lead. You couldn't find a more important job

END OF AN ERA

CHRISTIAN missionaries being forced out of China by the communist regime report the end of an era. The native Chinese adherents of Christianity are severing all relations with the West.

For several centuries Christian missionaries have been in China. Occasionally interrupted by a flaring Chinese hatred of foreigners, their work has nevertheless proceeded. Hundreds of thousands of Chinese were converted to Christianity.

A better way of life was taught. Great progress was made in public health, medicine and surgery. This spearhead of Western civilization frequently stimulated Western sympathy and aid for China's many tragedies.

Now the parting has come. Communist masters of the land tell the Christian Chinese they may keep their churches and faith so long as they do not violate the communist doctrine. Since this doctrine teaches hatred, false report and death for all dissenters and accused dissenters, it is difficult to see how the Chinese can build native churches that hew to the precepts of Christ.

But the deed is done, another of the tremendous manifestations of this revolutionary age. Whether the achievements of the Christian missionaries will be wiped out, or whether they will have a leavening effect later, only the future will disclose.

A KING BUYS A WIFE

IT IS HARDLY within the province of the public to pass opinion upon the personal activities of any citizen, but there has been a lifting of eyebrows over the romance between an Egyptian dancer and a rich American. A heir to the great King fortune in Texas is to marry the kooch artist, and is making quite a fuss about it.

A few details remain to be worked out, including divorcing his present wife, the payment of a so-called dowry of $30,000 to the prospective bride, having the marriage sanctioned by the Egyptian ministry of the interior, and King himself embracing the Moslem faith.

Nothing is being said about love, the usual basis for a successful marriage.

If Sheppard King wants to buy an Egyptian wife who is accomplished in violent terpsichorean art that's his business, and everybody will hope they live long and happily. But most persons will be surprised if they do.

Russia has great respect for force and later will have even greater respect for chastisement.

These Days

The first session of the 82nd Congress has ended in disorder and squabble because the President finds it difficult to accept the constitutional mechanism of separation of powers.

This Congress is in both its houses Democratic; yet, some of its committees have brought corruption and improprieties directly to the White House, thus placing the President, within a year of a presidential election, in a defensive position.

The same Congress, through the Russell and McCarran committees, both controlled by Democratic majorities, has discredited the President's management of foreign policy as well as the conduct of our war in Korea. And these same committees have placed the State Department in the awkward position of needing to defend its every act as well as its personnel.

It is significant that it has been Democrats, not Republicans, who have done this. Much is made of the attacks by Sen. Joe McCarthy, but no matter what McCarthy has said, his utterances are mild compared to the data brought out before the Russell, Kefauver, McCarran and Fulbright committees.

During the last Summer, I made a thorough study of the Russell committee testimony, which, as you may recall, ran about two million words. Part of my study has been published under the title "Out of Their Own Mouths." It is the China story as told by the witnesses before the Russell committee and it definitely discredits the administration.

Now along comes Jesse Jones's book, "Fifty Billion Dollars," which is shocking, to say the least. Jesse Jones establishes by his testimony all that the Fulbright committee brought out in its investigation of the RFC—and so much more that one wonders whether there are any decent men left in all this vast country. It is an astonishing tale of callous men who used their country to their own advantage. Jones has done his country a great service; the more the pity that it should have been necessary.

To get back to the 82nd Congress, the President faces the fact that on the verge of a presidential campaign he will not be able to cursethe 82nd Congress as he did the 80th without attacking his own party. He cannot blame the Republicans for Kefauver's disclosures nor McCarran's. These are Democratic accomplishments.

The Philip Jessup case is an example of the President's embarrassment. He had to stand by Jessup or admit that the American policy in China had a Communist orientation.

But the record stands that a Senate subcommittee reported by a vote of 3-2 against Jessup's appointment to represent the United States at the United Nations. Then the Senate had to pass on 10 names and passed on nine. It dropped Jessup. It did not refuse to confirm him; it did not confirm him. It omitted him.

In a word, the President is given a chance to give Jessup an interim appointment, while Jessup's colleagues go to UN with a confirmed appointment.

So this Congress takes its vacation. The members have gone home to be with their constituents for some months until January. Then they must come back to a most unpleasant battle with the President. He wants his way; the Democrats will not let him have it. They dare not let him have his way if each one of them is to be reelected, which interests these senators and representatives.

Miss Doctor

Copyright, 1951, by Elizabeth Seifert. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

Most any girl would be snapped at a chance to marry a doctor and a surgeon. Dr. Nicholas Cowan, chief surgeon at Boone Hospital, and Robert Smith, winner of Boone research. But when he asked his co-worker, Dr. Mollie Brooks, to marry him, she turned him down—flat. Nicholas was with out "heart," she told herself, and she wanted no "heartless" husband. He was cruel and to boot young Dr. Peter Shepherd, Boone's new resident surgeon, so urgently in need of sage advice. Thinking about it now in her luxurious apartment, Mollie Brooks found herself confused by Dr. Cowan's personality. He had been so very generous with her, helping her over the rough spots, teaching her how to live. Why, then, would he not caution Peter Shepherd, as she had begged Nicholas to do, caution this innocent young man against the wife and maids of Clara Wayne, Peter's landlady?

CHAPTER THREE

MOLLIE could remember a night long ago when she was in the hotel bar with a "date"—whom she could not remember! But Nicholas had dropped in with a group of friends. The hotel bar was the "21" of their city. That night—a woman in amber velvet and emeralds had been with Nicholas and another in black chiffon and diamonds: sick, handsome women, intimate enough to laugh with Dr. Cowan and even touch his hand. Mollie had ruined the evening for her hapless young man by sitting there gawking and musing. Would she ever wear black chiffon and diamonds and be able to make Dr. Cowan laugh?

Nicholas often laughed at her, but now she knew that black chiffon and diamonds, as such, were not for freckle-dusted Mollie Brooks. And she'd stopped regretting the fact.

Nicholas had urged Mollie to declare for orthopedic surgery rather than pediatrics. "You may confine your work to children, but make it surgery, darling."

So, with only four qualified women surgeons on record, Mollie must try to be the fifth. She might make it, too, with Nicholas to keep her at the job.

Well, the war had been a break for her, too. But it had been Nicholas who showed her how to use that break. He had helped her become chief consultant for the amputee wards in the Army and Navy hospitals. Nicholas had refused to let Mollie enlist.

"Don't you do it. Remember, you said you meant to do children's orthopedics. All right. You wouldn't do any of that in service. The Army doesn't want female medics; you'd just be giving pills to WACs. The thing for you to do is to stay right here and let some male surgeon go. You can teach, work up your cases, do a lot of good—for humanity and for yourself."

"On both counts, you should make a special effort to be very, very good, Mollie. Then—and don't say I'm being an opportunist, because I sure am where you're concerned—when the men come back, clanking their medals and rustling their service ribbons, you'll have a chance to be kept on. If you've been especially good."

"But—"

"There's no harm to politics, darling, if you get elected on merit."

"I guess not..."

She "guessed" she had been good. She knew she'd done some good work because when the war was over she had been kept on, with no discussion of her leaving the Staff. Nicholas' advice had been good, her own performance had qualified—and therefore she was now doing much, much better.

ter than most men medics at her stage, both in her profession and out of it. And Nicholas deserved credit for her advance in all things. Big things, and little ones.

Nicholas had a passion for living fully, and he had taught Mollie to make the most of life. He had taught her many of the things that contribute to the art of living harmoniously, gracefully. One of the things was her apartment; he'd taken two years for that task, but the results justified her interest and the sharp word or two which had flared between them.

At that particular stage in her education, Mollie had learned what "gracious living" meant and she was apt to be somewhat precious on the subject. Nicholas stepped on any such evidence, and he stepped hard. He knew and liked what he had made of small-town Mollie, but he was not ready to let her lean back in her tufted slipper chair and preen her feathers.

When the time came for her to get her own apartment, she had wanted one in a brand-new building—a place of crank-out windows and walk-in closets, and a bath that was, as Nicholas had said, like a newly capped tooth.

He'd been so ridiculously right! He'd taken Mollie to see these rooms and she'd been speechless. With horror, with shock.

They were in one of the tall old buildings in Gentile Square. Gentilly, it was pronounced. The chief advantage of the Square was that it was within walking distance of the Group; a lot of hospital folk lived in the Square. And the top floor of any of the buildings meant out-of-shape rooms, taller than they were wide, antiquated plumbing, possible wild life and certainly noisy neighbors.

But Nicholas insisted that she look at this place; he had plans for it. Plans which he bullied Mollie into carrying out, securing her a lease which would justify an outlay for plumbing and carpentry. He'd bullied her persistently throughout the decorating of the place, and about its furnishing, making her do the thing exactly right, buying only the furniture which she could afford, waiting until she could afford the right pieces.

The results—well, only last night a visiting specialist and his wife had come to dinner and had asked permission to copy an idea or so. "To think that a busy doctor would live in a place like—like this!" said the specialist's wife. "It's smart, and it's feminine. Perhaps you should be an interior decorator, Dr. Brooks."

Concealing some of her pleasure at the sophistication implied, Mollie had modestly given Nicholas credit for his help.

"He must be a very good friend," suggested the other woman. "This took work."

"He enjoyed it."

He had; Mollie knew. All the time he was working over Mollie's place, he'd told Mollie how much he was enjoying himself.

A frown between her eyes, Mollie cleared her dinner things away, taking satisfaction in the shining cleanliness of her home. Restlessly she walked about the apartment, touching this thing and that.

Even Hazel was one of Nicholas' contributions to her life. Sylvester—Nicholas' butler, he who had first called Mollie "Miss Doctor,"

As for other men in her life—other men there could have been. This Dr. Mollie Brooks was a handsome young woman; she had a quick tongue and a lively wit. Men admired her, and would have liked her, given the chance to know her well. Mollie had not given them that chance. Nicholas had completely absorbed her interest and her time. They went everywhere together.

Kiernan's ONE MAN'S OPINION

I hear the only effect of the ban on color television was that the people promoting it turned white, red and green in that order.

But most of us feel that so long as we can get Red Skelton in black and white we won't miss anybody's blue program.

Red had a clean program even before he was selling laundry supplies and nobody ever has to air out the room after he signs off.

Somebody has missed a bet in not snaring Red for the diplomatic service. Even the Russians couldn't stay mad after he had fallen up the Kremlin steps a few times and clowned through a conference wearing Stalin's hat upside down.

Anyway, except for the loss of Godfrey's freckles in gorgeous natural hue, we are sustaining no great loss in the color setback at the moment.

And for those of us who work on the other side of the lens this is a real boon; it means I can wear the same neckties I always wear—drab.

When the senior partner, a rabid and expert golfer, came into his office on his birthday, everything he touched—shelves, mail basket, desk drawers, water cooler—disgorged golf balls, with personally signed greetings from each employee taped thereto.

The terrible-tempered Mr. Gooseberry is getting fed up with visitors overstaying their welcome to cluster around his super-de-luxe television set. NEW YORK—Every so often the big town finds itself filled with movie performers, here on one pretense or another, and this is one of those times. Ham actors are coming through the windows, as we used to say back in the upper fourth at Grotto. You can't take a quiet walk down Broadway these nights without stumbling upon some cinematic matinee idol who will fix his magnetic stare on you and tell you he's hunting a suitable playscript.

Some of them are tolerable and one or two even enjoyable to speak to. Several notches above both these classes is Miss Joan Caulfield, late of Orange, N. J., and New York.

Over a period of six or seven years, or ever since she left the cast of Kiss and Tell to try her luck in Hollywood, Joan has been my favorite movie person. A series of classically mediocre movies has kept her from showing the public much of her acting ability but hasn't dampened her personality. She is pretty, intelligent, honest, kind and gracious.

In town for a few days after a short summer of acting in The Voice of the Turtle in the hay lofts, Joan dragged out the ginger ale and cigarettes the other afternoon and brought me up to date on life in Hollywood.

Joan is the girl who some years ago told me candidly that when she went out to make movies she was "going Hollywood" with no holds barred. She was going to live there and like it. None of this nonsense about pining away for New York. It made me melancholy but it made sense.

"Well," she told me, grinning, "I love it." She went on to tell me why. For a year and a half she has been married to Frank Ross, who once was Jean Arthur's man, and aside from being in love with him, she has a staggering appreciation of his directorial talents.

Frank has produced her new picture The Lady Says No. Furthermore, Joan now lives in a house that John Barrymore used to own. It goes without saying that no mere house could rid itself completely of the traces of Barrymore, so how could she help being in wonderland?

Kate Hepburn used to live in Joan's house, and Frances Bergen lives across the street. It was Mrs. Bergen's great ambition to meet Hepburn, but you know Kate. None of that friends-and-neighbors foolishness for her. One day, however, Frances took her baby daughter, Candy, out on the sidewalk just as Hepburn came out and Kate couldn't escape meeting them head-on. She met the challenge magnificently. Striding past, she paused briefly, eyed the child and said, flatly, "Spit image of Edgar"—and marched on.

ALSO IN TOWN IS HOLLYWOOD'S most celebrated health fiend, Robert Cummings, the pride of Joplin, Mo. Cummings has just finished off a movie called The Barefoot Mailman but he is around these parts chiefly because he will open shortly in a play with Ann Sothern, Faithfully Yours.

Handsome and incredibly young-looking (he has to be older than he looks), Cummings had me to breakfast in his suite at the Warwick and, in between sipping beakers of orange juice crammed with every conceivable health food and vitamin, he told me the story of the Great English Fraud.

It was in the depression years that Bob, struggling vainly to get an acting job on Broadway, almost got one when he was mistaken for an Englishman. Englishmen were about the only actors in demand, these days. So Mr. Cummings took steps.

He cashed in a life insurance policy, sailed to England, spent 29 days roaming the country on a motorcycle; bought himself some tweeds and a stick—and, at long last, sat down and wrote to 80 or 90 New York producers, directors and actors' agents that Blade Stanhope Conway, Esq., the celebrated British leading man, was coming to America and would be available for interviews and possible juicy acting roles.

Don't think it didn't work. Bob got back to New York and fell right into a fat part in Galsworthy's The Roof—and was on his way.

As an old admirer of the fraudulent, I got a big boot out of his story. I hope you do, too. There's nothing like a magnificent depression to brighten up the dull world in which we live.

Mere Male Tells Secret Of Sour Dough Bread

NEW YORK, Oct. 25—"If someone could just capture and bottle the smell of fresh, home-baked bread and bottle it, it'd run Chanel No. 5 right out of the market," the big man said.

"I'll order a quart of it in advance," his companion, a woman reporter, replied. "That wonderful, warm, yeasty smell! Mama used to bake on Tuesdays and Saturdays."

"And whatever tasted so good in all the world as the fresh heel, hot from the oven, and the melted butter trickling over your fingers" the big man asked, dreamily.

"Stop! You're killing me," the woman ordered. "I used to do the churning, and when we got the fresh bread all buttery and Grandma opened up her quince preserves."

"Look who's killing whom!" cried the big man, who turned out to be James Beard, the gourmet, food editor of Argosy magazine and author of "The Fireside Cookbook."

"Nobody makes bread any more," the reporter mourned. "It's a lost art. Everyone is weaned on store-boughten cotton."

"Well, yes and no," said Beard. "We're right in the middle of a generation that doesn't know good bread from sour grapes. But we are also right in the middle of a renaissance and reformation in the bread department."

"You'd be surprised," he continued, "at how many people are making bread these days. I think you'll find that more and more people are now making bread at home—not all the time, but at least every so often as a treat, like we used to make candy apples."

What surprises Beard is the sudden interest all over the country in sour dough bread. He can't figure out for the life of him whether the interest is caused by all those radio and TV sagas of the Wild West and the Klondike, or what.

"Land sakes, both my grandfathers were sour-doughs," the woman said, "and my father was really

$6,062 Finding Made Against Massillon Mayor

COLUMBUS, Oct. 25—State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson today returned a finding for recovery of $6,062 against Massillon Mayor S. Robert Weirich because Weirich has an interest in the Brown Lumber Co., which has been doing business with the city.

The findings were listed in an examination report on city offices covering the period from Feb. 15, 1948, to Oct. 31, 1950. Ferguson charged Weirich held in excess of five percent of the stock of the lumber company, which sold $5,062 worth of merchandise to the city.

Ferguson pointed out Ohio law specifically prohibits a city officer from having any interest in the expenditure of money. The law even provides, Ferguson said, that such an interest shall bar a person from holding any office of trust in the municipal corporation.

Ohio Doctor's License Grab OK'd By Court

COLUMBUS, Oct. 25—The Ohio supreme court has held that conviction on a federal charge of income tax evasion is grounds for revoking the Ohio license of a medical doctor.

The court thus upheld the revocation by the state medical board of the license of Dr. Julius Raab of Cleveland.

The board acted on the ground that Raab was convicted of income tax evasion and therefore was "guilty of felony" within the meaning of the Ohio law which provides for license revocation.

Raab appealed to the courts, contending that the offense was not a felony under the Ohio statutes. The Cuyahoga County common pleas and appellate courts upheld his contention.

The supreme court, however, reversed the lower courts and held that conviction and sentence to imprisonment under a federal statute is "guilty of felony" and is a valid ground for revoking the license.

Dope Hearings Are Cleaned Up

CLEVELAND, Oct. 25—Only five more defendants are left in the trials being held in Cleveland federal court of more than 50 persons arrested in the recent narcotics mop-up in Northeastern Ohio.

Jail terms totaling 31 years were handed out by Judge Charles J. McNamee yesterday to 11 persons who had pleaded guilty. He also sentenced Mark Young, 21, of Akron, to three and a half years in jail after he was found guilty by a jury.

Yesterday's session brought seven more guilty pleas, bringing the total so pleading to 47. Five others were found guilty by trial.

Only 1 In 5 Farmers Write Wills

Tips Are Given On Legal Steps

TOPEKA, Kan., Oct. 25 — Fewer than one out of five farm owners make wills, providing for the distribution of their property, yet most farmers are anxious that the home farm remain in the family and that a fair division of their property be made among their children.

The best way to accomplish this is to make a will, according to Capper's Farmer magazine. Unless plans are set forth in writing, it is difficult for one of several children to obtain the home farm without handicapping himself with an excessive mortgage.

The magazine says:

"In planning for descent of property within the family, parents have three general choices open to them. They may transfer their farm during their lifetime to their children; parents may provide for the transfer of the farm at their death through wills, trusts or similar arrangements, or they may do nothing. In the last case their farm will be distributed according to their state law which may or may not be in the best interest of their family."

PARENTS MAY find these points helpful in thinking through their own farm transfer problems:

1. Make sure that both parents or the survivor will have a comfortable home and sufficient income for their remaining years.
2. Provide that the son or daughter remaining on the home farm will get full compensation for improvements made to the farm and home. Give equitable, rather than equal, treatment to the children.
3. Become familiar with the state laws of descent. Where state laws do not meet the needs, outline several alternative arrangements for carrying out the family's specific goals in the light of its particular situation.
4. Choose the best plan for your situation, then get a lawyer to help you work out the final details and have him put the plan into correct legal form.
5. Keep the will up to date. Times change, as does the family and value and kinds of property.
6. Get members of the family together and discuss with them the arrangements made. Then each member will know what to expect and what to plan for.

Winnie Apologizes To Park 'Neckers'

PLYMOUTH, Eng., Oct. 25—Winston Churchill, who is earning the title "iron man" by the strenuous speaking campaign he is conducting, showed his perennial youth in another way last night.

Floodlights and loudspeakers which were turned on at a park where he was to speak, flushed several young couples from the shrubbery.

The 77-year-old Conservative leader apologized to the "neckerers," adding: "I know you have important matters in hand, but I won't take much of your time."

Ever stop to think Your First Car can be a Buick!

THIS being a land where it is every man's right to dream of getting ahead—and the pursuit of happiness is guaranteed by the Constitution—it happens that a great many people aspire to own a Buick.

But too often they start with a lesser car first—from a feeling that Buicks are something you have to build up to gradually, as your take-home pay improves.

So—if you have any such notion—we'd like to set you straight, right here and now.

You don't have to hope and dream and wait. If you can afford a new car—the first car you buy can be the Buick SPECIAL pictured here.

Its price tag says so. Its low cost of operation says so too.

We know that it looks like a lot of money. That's what makes it such a buy.

We know that it has a long list of features found in costlier cars, and that it rides and handles like cars that sell for a great deal more.

But that simply means that—at its price—you're getting a very big money's worth.

All of which adds up to one conclusion: the smart thing to do is come in and give this neat and nimble new SPECIAL a thorough going-over.

Try out its power—the power of its high-compression, valve-in-head Fireball Engine.

Try out its ride and handling—and you'll discover it has the "big-car feel" that you'd expect from a Buick.

Try it out for size—for room—for comfort—for all the things that you've dreamed someday of having in a car—and you'll thank your stars that you found out the facts of life in time.

Equipment, accessories, trim and models are subject to change without notice. *Standard on ROADMASTER, optional at extra cost on other Series.

POLITICS TO BE MAIN TONE

Congress Due To Face 1952 Political Problems

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25 — Congress will find its legislative problems less complicated than its political ones when it returns Jan. 8 for a year marked by the presidential election.

Issues of world affairs are expected to dominate the legislative scene, at least at the outset of the second session of the 82nd Congress when the Japanese peace treaty and accompanying security pacts will be considered.

The new threat to world security raised in the Middle East and the continuing war in Korea may create troubles to dwarf the comparatively minor domestic items now in view.

Most of the pressing domestic matters were either disposed of or advanced partially in the session which closed Saturday night.

Congress appropriated more money than can be spent this year for arms and defense mobilization, approved a draft-UMT plan, voted $5.7 billion in new taxes and reviewed the controls situation. Mr. Truman signed the tax bill Saturday and indicated he would ask for still more revenue next year.

NEXT YEAR it will face another request for additional taxes which the legislative tax leaders themselves are now in no mood to consider.

But other subjects left unfinished by the first session include such things as the Tidewater oil dispute, the long-debated St. Lawrence project and statehood for Alaska and Hawaii.

Early action on the statehood bills

LITTLE THOUGHT OF SELF

Wyoming GI Demonstrates Sacrifice In Korea War

IN KOREA, Oct. 25 — Many things happen to a man in battle. Many things are done under fire by men who can't explain them afterwards.

And the greatest of these is self sacrifice.

Pfc. Franklin E. Roton, 18, of Sheridan, Wyo., lies gravely wounded in an Army hospital today because in one swift moment of impulse he abandoned the instinct for self preservation to protect another man.

Private Roton doesn't consider himself particularly brave.

And before he came to Korea he did not know the man whose life he was to save. But when the decisive moment came, he saw what he had to do in a flash and did not hesitate.

It was still dark on Heartbreak Ridge early one morning and Roton's outfit, Second Battalion of the 23rd Regiment, Second Division, was making the final assault on the ridge's highest peak.

EASY COMPANY was in the lead and Roton was a newly appointed medic in Easy Company's second platoon. It was dark and foggy on the peak and as they charged forward to the crest the men of Easy Company could barely see each other.

But they could hear the mortars and the machineguns and the grenades—and they could feel when they were hit. And when they were hit they shouted "medic" and Medic Roton ran to help them.

Then one time, as he stooped over a wounded man to tend him, Private Roton saw a grenade fall out of the mist and land just on the other side of his patient.

He had no time to think, no time to wonder about life and death or duty and bravery and cowardice. He only had time for one notion.

In the one notion, the medic took care of his patient. Throwing himself over the wounded man, he absorbed the full blast of the grenade and took a hatful of shrapnel in his back and head.

Hours later, the medic and his patient were both lying on stretchers in a battalion aid station and Roton said:

"It was a grenade. It lit in front of me and I just drove over in front of him and fell on the guy."

He was in pain and could not say any more. The litter jeep took him away to the rear. He was only 18 and had been in Korea only six weeks.

He was badly hurt and had learned that war is not a game. But he had also found out what kind of a man he was—and that knowledge he could keep forever.

Marietta Due To Host Meet

MARIETTA, Oct. 25—More than 3,500 elementary and high school teachers are expected in Marietta tomorrow for the annual convention of the Eastern Ohio Teachers Association.

William L. Shirer, foreign affairs authority and radio commentator, will be guest speaker at the opening session in the Marietta college field house.

This will be the 11th time in 80 years that Marietta has been host for the meeting.

LOSES 100 POUNDS HEALTH IMPROVED

"I only wish that I had learned of Rennel Concentrate sooner," writes Mrs. B. K. Ludford, 230 Logan St., Circleville, Ohio. "I am past 73 years of age, and did weigh 363 lbs. Since taking Rennel I have lost over 100 lbs. and also my general health is much improved. Rennel Concentrate has done so much for me."

Imagine, eat plenty and lose weight with this simple yet effective amazing home recipe. After purchasing a bottle of Rennel from your druggist pour the contents into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill bottle. Take two tablespoonsful twice a day. That's all there is to it. No diets to complicate your meal planning. No expensive vitamins to fortify your system from weakness while going without food for you can eat normally. If the very first bottle doesn't show the simple, easy way to lose pounds of bulky fat and help regain slender, more youthful curves—if reducible excess fat doesn't seem to disappear almost like magic just return the empty bottle to the manufacturer for your money back. Insist on and be sure to get genuine Rennel.

'Radar Fence' Nearly Ready, Airforce Says

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25 — Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg says that the U. S. soon will take a long stride forward in atomic defenses with the completion of its long-projected radar detection system.

The Airforce chief of staff said some stations in the so-called "radar fence" to warn against hostile planes, already are in operation and that all of them should be operating in a short time.

The Airforce has spent $295 million on the radar fence since Russia exploded its first atomic bomb two years ago. The warning system is counted upon to reduce casualties in case of a surprise attack from the air.

Vandenberg warned, however, that America will not be fully prepared to meet such an attack for a matter of years, because of the long time required to build modern jet interceptor planes to fight off enemy bombers.

The Airforce is not yet fully converted to jet planes, and only a small percentage of the jets in operation are "all-weather" types capable of meeting a night attack.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 25—Two persons were injured in Cleveland when a four-by-six-foot sign was blown loose by high winds that blew into the city last night.

Otto F. Decker, 49, of East Cleveland, and Mrs. Lavina Gannon, 35, of Cleveland, were injured by the sign which fell on them as they were walking in downtown Cleveland.

VIOLATORS GET WARNINGS

New Ohio Pollution Panel Promising Prosecution

COLUMBUS, Oct. 25—Ohio's brand new water pollution board has decided unanimously on a program of persuasion when possible, but unrelenting prosecution when necessary to combat stream pollution.

The board met for the first time since its establishment by the last legislature yesterday and heard reports from three state agencies as to the steps they had already taken to overcome desecration of Ohio's streams.

Gov. Frank J. Lausche, who presided at the initial session, pointed out that the anti-pollution fight extended back many years and added:

"I am in strict accord with what is being done, not to use the penal powers of the law so long as we can obtain our objective through reason and persuasion.

"I will ask the board to use persuasive powers and solicitation to get the job done. But when we come across recalcitrant, defiant and adamant individuals, corporations or municipalities then the full force of the law will be brought to bear upon them.

"We must quit talking and start acting."

THE TWO appointed members of the board endorsed the program outlined by the governor. Cincinnati City Manager W. R. Kellogg declared the persuasive steps already taken by the attorney general and health director were "the right method," while Barton Holl of Logan, representing industry, also promised complete support.

Holl, however, coupled his pledge with a warning against "lip service of some communities, including my own," to the program to avoid prosecution.

State Health Director John D. Porterfield, chairman of the group, declared that 47 cities and 53 villages over 2,000 population now have no sewage treatment works.

Thirty of them, he said, were cited for failure to comply with the law, and the citations alone resulted in remedial action by 26 of the 30. Porterfield added:

"If the cities produce the maximum possible effort in the minimum possible time, we will consider they are acting in good faith."

Porterfield brought out that the citations were brought under the old law, which he admitted was practically toothless "because of the difficulty of developing legal evidence of the effective waste on 'human health and welfare.'"

The new law, however, provides criminal penalty for violations, defines pollution, and makes polluters civilly liable for their action.

After next September, any polluter who discharges untreated sewage into a stream without a specific temporary permit from the board will be guilty of violation. The board may issue the permits until the situation can be reasonably corrected.

Colonel's Court Martial Opens

TOLEDO, Oct. 25—Officials of a Toledo auto firm which "pyramided" a $34,700 contract with Rossford Ordnance Depot into a $408,902 account were called to the stand today in the court martial of Col. S. W. Mellwin in Toledo federal court.

Arthur H. Knake, purchasing officer of the depot, testified yesterday that the Hertzfeldt-Oldsmobile, Inc., auto firm had boosted its account with the depot through a series of six contract modifications. Mellwin, relieved as commander of the depot Aug. 22, is charged with accepting unduly large discounts on his car in dealings with Hertzfeldt.

'Loneliest Queen' Dies In France

PARIS, Oct. 25—An 86-year old woman, long known as "Europe's loneliest queen," died today in her chateau near Versailles.

She was the former Queen Amelie of Portugal, one of the few foreign royalties to be born in England, who passed away in Chateau de Bellevue in Chesnay.

The former queen was born in Twickenham near London where she spent most of her girlhood with her parents, the Count and Countess of Paris, who were forbidden to live in France.

Major CD Alert Is Termed OK

COLUMBUS, Oct. 25—Army officials were satisfied today with the quick response of Civil Defense telephone operators to a major alert at the Columbus air filter center.

The center was operating within minutes after an alert was sounded at 4:45 p. m. yesterday from the Eastern Air Defense Command. Most of the center's 400 ground observers in all parts of the state had been reached within 45 minutes.

Germans Swing To Religion

CLEVELAND, Oct. 25—The Rev. Wilhelm Mueller of Berlin, Germany, maintains people with the greatest struggles in Germany are showing the greatest interest in religion.

The German pastor, speaking before the Autumn council session of Seventh-Day Adventists in Cleveland last night, cited the 75 percent increase in members of that denomination since the war as evidence of the swing to religious ideals.

Printers Work On Ballots

AKRON, Oct. 25—The Craftsman Press, Inc., of Akron, is working 24 hours a day in an effort to get out the Summit County ballots before the Nov. 6 election.

The ballots had to be reprinted after the state supreme court ruled the names of the candidates had to be equally rotated. Summit County was particularly hard hit by the ruling because 60 rotations are necessary to make the ballots conform.

Private Schools Needing Support

CLEVELAND, Oct. 25—Dr. A. Blair Knapp, newly-inaugurated president of Denison university, believes that if private schools disappear because of lack of funds, private enterprise may also disappear.

Dr. Knapp strongly supported efforts of privately-endowed colleges and universities to seek financial gifts from industrial corporations in a talk in Cleveland last night.

Barkley Booked For Nov. 7 Talk

COLUMBUS, Oct. 25—Vice President Alben W. Barkley will deliver the keynote address Nov. 7 at the opening in Columbus of the Bonds for Israel drive.

Chairman Joseph Zox said it will be a non-political visit. The goal in Columbus for 1951 is $1 million to help in the development of the industrial, mineral and agricultural resources of Israel.

Fractionator Quickly Splits Blood Parts

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 25—A blood fractionator—a remarkable machine that takes blood from a donor's arm and splits it into all its components in 15 minutes—was demonstrated today before the nation's top blood experts in Minneapolis.

Whole blood flows from the donor's arm down a tube into the device under the guidance of a single doctor, nurse or technician.

Minutes later, in separate bottles, are the blood's oxygen-carrying red cells; the white cells; the blood platelets, important in preventing hemorrhage; fibrinogen; which helps prevent clotting, and a dozen other blood components.

The implications of this development, the work of Prof. Edwin Cohn of Harvard university, are of the greatest significance to a nation which must be prepared for atomic warfare.

For an atom-bomb blast over a single large city may destroy some blood stockpiles; thousands of persons will be wounded; surviving doctors and technicians will be scarce, and blood will be at a premium.

Ordinarily it takes hours of labor by dozens of technicians to split human blood into all its components. To give whole blood-plasma plus red and white cells and platelets often would be wasteful.

Gotham Paper Booming Like

NEW YORK, Oct. 25—The New York Herald-Tribune, a leading Republican newspaper, said today the "man and the occasion" have met and General Eisenhower should be the GOP presidential candidate.

In an unusual front-page editorial, the newspaper said:

"The opportunity for service that falls to a great party is matched by the appearance of Eisenhower as a leader, wise and tested, capable of giving reality to what masses of men and women have dreamed."

HEINE TO PLAY CENTER

Tigers Meet Greenfield For Crack At SCO Title

Circleville's Red and Black Tiger footballers are to challenge invading Greenfield McClain gridders Thursday night for a crack at the 1951 South Central Ohio League championship.

The Tigers to date have an unblemished league record with two victories in as many starts, second only to the Washington C. H. Blue Lion gridders who have three wins to date.

A win over Greenfield in Thursday's encounter, or even a tie, would pave the way for the Tigers to meet the Blue Lions Nov. 9 with a chance at taking the SCO title for the fourth straight year. And the Circleville-Washington game, as it has the last several years, will again be the deciding factor in the 1951 league chase.

EVEN IF Circleville were to lose its match to Greenfield, it still could emerge with a tie for the loop title in the final game if it could manage to beat Washington.

The other three league teams, Greenfield, Wilmington and Hillsboro, are out of the money again in this year's chase.

Complete standings of the loop teams going into Thursday's game follow:

Team	Won	Lost	Tied
Washington	3	0	0
Circleville	2	0	0
Greenfield	0	1	1
Wilmington	0	2	1
Hillsboro	0	2	0

As Circleville tackles Greenfield Thursday, Hillsboro will be traveling to Wilmington to battle with the Hurricane for last place in the loop. Washington C. H. plays Norwood Friday night.

Circleville, on paper, figures to have an advantage in scoring over the invading McClain clan by virtue of previous game scores.

The Tigers earlier this season bested Monroe of Butler County by a 19-13 count; Northridge of Dayton bested Monroe 19-7; while Greenfield lost to Northridge 7-0. This would tend to put the Tigers about on par with the McClain crew.

However, the Tigers posted an 18-6 league win over Wilmington earlier this season and Wilmington and Greenfield fought to a 6-6 deadlock, which, on paper, would give the locals a 12-point edge.

CIRCLEVILLE's record this season includes four victories, one tie and a loss. Greenfield has a 2-2-2 mark, two wins, two losses and two ties.

A new factor will be in the Greenfield lineup Thursday when the McClainers invade here. It will be Bill Copeland, injured earlier in the season.

Copeland is expected to alternate with hard-driving Fullback Delbert

Purdin in upsetting the CHS defenses Thursday, Purdin bullying through center and Copeland diverting with end plays.

Only one change will be in effect when the Tigers meet the Greenfield team.

That will be at center, where Walt Heine will replace Gary Thomas on the starting lineup.

Probable starting lineups for both teams in the encounter, slated to begin at 8 p. m. with both Circleville and Greenfield marching bands on hand, are as follows:

Circleville
Ends—Jim Cook and Charles Johnson.

Tackles—Bill Gillis and Mike Brown.

Guards—Clyde Cook and John Cockrell.

Center—Walt Heine.

Quarterback—Jerry Rooney.

Halfbacks—Jerry Pritchard and Paul Hill.

Fullback—Dave Coffland.

Greenfield
Ends—Charles Harris and Dale Phillips.

Tackles—Tom Blair and Duane Stratton.

Guards—Dave Brizius and Ed Grate.

Center—Fred Raikie.

Quarterback—Lawrence Benner.

Halfbacks—Ralph VanMeter and Bill Copeland.

Fullback—Del Purdin.

Hunk Anderson Back In Saddle For Bears Team

CHICAGO, Oct. 25—Hunk Anderson, who last week was ready to become head coach of the Washington Redskins, will be back handling the Chicago Bears' line-men Monday, a job he has held continuously for the past 11 years.

George Halas, owner-coach of the Bears, got his assistant to return to the fold yesterday, offering him the same financial terms advanced by George Marshall, the Redskins' president.

Anderson, who was head coach at Notre Dame after Knute Rukne died, had retired from football this season to devote full-time to his job with a Detroit steel firm.

He was still under contract to the Bears when Marshall lured him to Washington to discuss taking over direction of the Redskins, who were in the midst of a three-game losing streak.

But it was Halas who blocked Anderson's appointment. The Bears' boss refused to release Anderson from his contract unless Washington agreed to give up Paul Lipscomb, star tackle. This Marshall refused to do.

The per capita consumption of fish in America is only one-half that of England.

Ducats On Sale Now For Annual Football Fete

Circleville Booster Club officers and directors met Wednesday night to lay plans for the annual Circleville football banquet, due Nov. 13 in First EUB church service center.

Special entertainment for the program is to be provided by Chester A. Crumpler, Columbus policeman, who has appeared here during the Woody Hayes banquet and Rotary Club meeting.

However, Booster President Wendell Turner said the organization is still seeking its main speaker for the program.

A total of 250 tickets were released for sale during the session. The banquet ducats may be purchased from Dr. Paul Routzahn, Dr. D. S. Goldschmidt, George Fishpaw and Court-Main restaurant.

MEANWHILE, the Boosters also agreed Wednesday to furnish transportation for the CHS marching band to the Westerville game, last "away" game of the season for the Tigers.

On recommendation by Basketball Coach Dick West, the Boosters also agreed to feed the basketball team before all "home" games this season, as well as planning one trip to an OSU contest in Columbus for the Tiger cagers.

"We plan to help the basketball team in any way we can," Turner added.

Joe Still Holds Slight Edge In Marciano Tilt

NEW YORK, Oct. 25—Joe Louis remained a slight favorite today for his vital ten-rounder against Rocky Marciano tomorrow night, but the talk persists that the Brockton Rock—youth and hungry—will be even money by ring time.

Trainloads of New Englanders are descending on New York for the big Madison Square Garden bout whose winner, assuming he wins emphatically, figures to get the next shot at Jersey Joe Walcott, the ancient comebacker.

Youth, speed and punching power all are in Marciano's corner; experience, reach and punching power are going for Louis. It does, indeed, loom as a "pick 'em" bout which, considering both men hit very hard, may well not go the limit.

The International Boxing Club, which has found more public interest in this bout than in any recent heavyweight struggle, expects a near-capacity 15,000 crowd despite the fact that the fight will be telecast beginning at 10 p. m.

Only other horse with more than one to his credit is H. D. Hanover, who turned the trick twice for H. R. Warren and Son, East Moline, Ill.

Two other horses hit the two-minute mark three times. They were the 3-year-old pacer Tar Heel and the 4-year-old pacer Dudley Hanover. Del Miller, Meadow Lands, Pa., trains Tar Heel, while Benny Schue, Grand Forks, N. D., drives Dudley Hanover, free legged ace owned by The Hayes Fair Acres Stable, Du Quoin, Ill.

Only other horse with more than one to his credit is H. D. Hanover, who turned the trick twice for H. R. Warren and Son, East Moline, Ill.

31 Miracle Miles Seen During 1951

2 Pacers Chalk Up 4 Wins At Fast Clip

COLUMBUS, Oct. 25 — Trotters and pacers, racing at blinding speed over lightning fast tracks, have accounted for thirty-one two-minute miles in 1951, second highest single season total in the history of the sport.

Since the two-minute list, harness racing's most select honor roll, was inaugurated by Star Pointer in 1897, the annual output has averaged less than ten. The all-time top was 1938 when 48 "miracle miles" were posted.

Sharing the two-minute lead in 1951, according to official records compiled by the United States Trotting Association, are Sampson Hanover, 4-year-old pacer owned by K. D. Owen of Houston, Texas; and Prince Jay, aged pacing gelding belonging to Sol Camp of Shafter, Calif. Each has posted four to date.

Sampson Hanover, trained and driven by veteran Frank Ervin, became the fastest horse ever to race over a half mile track when he went in 1:59 3-5 at Delaware, O. in September. The undefeated stallion later toured the Lexington, Ky track in 1:56 4-5, fastest mile in the sport since 1938.

PRINCE JAY, trained and driven by young Wilbur Beattie, tied for the lead with a 1:59 2-5 mile at Ingwood, Cal. last week. He also scored at Springfield, Ill., and at Lexington twice. The California meeting now in progress probably will produce more two-minute miles.

The driving lead belongs to Ervin, from Sedalia, Mo., who has eight two-minute trips to his credit. In addition to his miles with Sampson Hanover, Ervin is credited with a trio behind the great pacing star Good Time and one with the 3-year-old trotter Yankee Hanover.

Beattie has five two-minute rides, the fifth with Mighty Sun, and shares second place in the driving column with Harry Pownall of Goshen, N. Y. Pownall has connected three times with the world's champion 4-year-old pacing mare, Tassel Hanover, and twice with the many times champion Star's Pride, 4-year-old trotter.

Two other horses hit the two-minute mark three times. They were the 3-year-old pacer Tar Heel and the 4-year-old pacer Dudley Hanover. Del Miller, Meadow Lands, Pa., trains Tar Heel, while Benny Schue, Grand Forks, N. D., drives Dudley Hanover, free legged ace owned by The Hayes Fair Acres Stable, Du Quoin, Ill.

Only other horse with more than one to his credit is H. D. Hanover, who turned the trick twice for H. R. Warren and Son, East Moline, Ill.

Jr. Tiger Gridders Are Bested 12-7 By Chillicothe In Finale

Circleville's reserve Tiger football team ended its 1951 season with a thud Wednesday afternoon in Chillicothe.

Leading by a 7-6 margin until the last 10 seconds of play in the game, the junior Tigers fell to a 12-7 defeat in its finale when the Chillicothe juniors completed a touchdown pass.

Chillicothe was the first to score in the encounter, racking up six points in the second period.

Circleville retaliated early in the final quarter of the game following an 89-yard drive into paydirt. As the result of the drive, Halfback George Johnson romped over from the 6 and Ronnie Bennington converted on an end sweep.

THAT GAVE the junior Tiger team a 7-6 advantage, with only a few minutes of game time remaining.

Chillicothe was unable to go following the kickoff, Circleville taking over and reeling off a first down in a time-killing attack.

Then, with 30 seconds of playing time remaining, Circleville fumbled on a quarterback sneak on its own 25. By the time Chillicothe was ready to get its next play in motion, only 10 seconds of play was remaining.

Chillicothe then connected for its game-winning TD on a desperation pass, ending the contest at the 12-7 mark.

Wednesday's defeat was the first of the season for the locals, who previously had won four and tied one. The tie was against Chillicothe earlier.

Names of the junior Tigers who played in Wednesday's finale, along with the complete record for this season, are as follows:

Washington Township Dairy Herd Is Tops In County

25 Milkers Averaging 383 Pounds

Recob, Lintner Herds Rank High

Walter Rase of Washington Township has been named as the top producer in Pickaway County's Dairy Herd Improvement Program during the last year.

Rase's herd of 25 cows was tops in the county last year with an average of 383 pounds of butterfat and 10,309 pounds of milk from each dairy animal.

Second to Rase in the herd program was Alvin Recob, whose 18-cow herd produced an average of 372 pounds of milk, 9,998 pounds of butterfat and 10,309 pounds of milk.

However, even though Rase, Recob and the Lintner herds produced high, the average for all dairy animals in the county last year was only 220 pounds of butterfat and only 5,500 pounds of milk per animal.

"THIS AVERAGE cow is not a very profitable cow," pointed out Extension Agent Larry Best. "She will return her owner only a few dollars for her work."

In another sample, 250 animals were tested with an average of 330 pounds of butterfat and 8,004 pounds of milk.

"This cow," Best said, "is returning her owner a good return for his labor, but still under industrial wage rates."

"The only way to discover non-profitable dairy cows is by testing. R. T. Blaney, production testing supervisor of the county, now has 24 herds on a testing program."

In addition, the county dairy service unit has announced its breeding results in the county during the last year.

Jim Courtright, breeding technician, reported that to date this year he has artificially bred 1,301 different dairy animals for the 336 members of the association here.

He also reported that the percentage of success on first service averaged about 65 percent.

"This is very close to conception rates where natural service is used," Best pointed out, "but it can be improved."

"TOO MANY Pickaway County dairymen are in too big a hurry to breed their calves following calving to enjoy a high conception rate. Cows bred 60-90 days after calving have a higher conception rate than cows bred only 30 days after calving. It is not unusual for a well managed dairy herd to have 75 percent conception rate."

Annual meeting of the local dairy organization will be held Jan. 17 in Jackson Township school.

Death Reunites Pair Of Cincy Lads, Brothers

CINCINNATI, Oct. 25—Death has reunited little Frankie Homar, 9, with his brother and inseparable chum, Johnny.

The two boys were born with an incurable disease and were given only a few years at most to live by doctors.

The lads managed to fool the medics, however, and Johnny—fun-loving, energetic and happy—lived nearly six years. But last August he suddenly became seriously ill and died within two weeks.

Frankie seemed to lose heart. "He just sort of gave up," said his grieving mother, Mrs. Vella Homar. He started back to school in September, but soon had to quit. Monday he died in his home.

Today, following funeral services, Frankie will be placed beside his brother again — in Baltimore Pike Cemetery.

Indianapolis Dem Tipped As New Party Chieftain

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25 — President Truman's advisers report today that Frank E. McKinley, banker, politician and sportsman of Indianapolis, is the new "dark horse" possibility for Democratic national chairman.

These advisers say Mr. Truman is seriously considering recommending McKinley to the Democratic National Committee, which meets in Washington Wednesday to elect a successor to William M. Boyle Jr.

One source said Mr. Truman has not yet reached a final decision. It added that others on the top list of possibilities are former Rep. John Carroll of Colorado, Thomas A. Morgan, chairman of the board of the Sperry Corp., and Price Stabilizer Michael DiSalle, a former mayor of Toledo.

One presidential friend meanwhile stressed earlier reports that Mr. Truman might wish more time in which to reach a decision and might delay it until after his November vacation in Florida.

In this event, it was repeated, Mrs. India Edwards, presently a vice chairman in charge of the women's division, would be promoted to temporary chairman.

Jail Sentence Start Delayed

The carrying out of a 10-day jail sentence against Leon M. Byrd has been delayed until Monday by Judge William D. Radcliff in Pickaway County common pleas court.

The sentence was given for Byrd's failure to comply with a former court order concerning the payment of temporary alimony in a divorce suit brought by Alice Byrd. Warrant for the defendant's arrest will be issued unless the arraignment is paid by Monday.
